CINCINNATI, June 16, 1876.

Well, the battle is over and the Blaine cohorts fold their banners in defeat. They fought well, but when all the other candidates sunk their rivalries and started in with the war cry "anything to beat Blaine," the doom of the gallant commoner of Maine was sealed. It was one of the most desperate political battles known in our history, and it must be a matter of pride for Blaine, even in his defeat, to remember that he was only conquered when the field combined against him. The result has been as great a surprise here as it is, doubtless, in Pittsburgh; for when the Convention opened this morning the general feeling was that Blaine would make it by the third ballot. When that passed however, opinion changed; it was conceded that the ballot had defeat. Four more ballots were taken however before the result was acchieved. The details of the fight will be given in the regular report, and will show how the field was won for Hayes.

The feature of the whole day which excited liveliest discussion in the Convention, and which is freely talked of to night, is the action of the Cameron crowd. Had the Pennsylvania delegation gone to Blaine, as had been expected, on the third ballot, his election would have been assured. Cameron, however, played the despot, the foes of Blaine helped him along, the majority of the delegation was swindled out of its rights, and so the State was really antagonized to Blaine. The feeling among the Blaine men against the Cameron crowd is very bitter, and while they endorse the successful candidate, they will not be likely to forget the Camerons.

The feeling here after the smoke of the battle had cleared away, was that the Convention had but an excellent ticket in the field. The more it is looked at the better it appears. Hayes, it is conceded, will sweep Ohio like a tornado, and Wheeler will be alike popular in New York. These two States were looked upon as doubtful, and the ticket that secures them really recures victory. That is the drift of talk to-night.

There is great excitement here to-night over the result. The Cincinnati people wanted Bristow, of course, but as an Ohio man has been chosen, they are jubilantly satisfied.

Cincinnati possesses no further attractions for visitors now and the hegira commenced as soon as the result of the ballots for President was announced. Hundreds left the city early to-night, and every outgoing train takes away a load.

By to-morrow night the city will have resumed its graveyard quietude. You will will see the majority of the Pittsburghers at home to-morrow. H. M. L.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—The Convention was late in assembling. The weather was cool. The galleries were two-thirds full, and much interest and excitement prevailed.

The Convention was called to order at 10:35. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Morgan, of the First Episcopal Church.

Recapitulation.

Blaine	285	Hartranft	56

Bristow	113	Conkling	99
Hayes	61

The announcement of Minnesota's ten votes for Blaine was received with shouts of applause from the galleries. One of the Mississippi delegates was absent, making the total vote fifteen, divided into three for Bristow and twelve for Morton. The cheering was not particularly noticeable.

When Missouri cast fourteen for Blaine, twelve for Morton, two for Bristow, one for Conkling and one for Hayes, the Blaine men from all parts of the hall expressed their unbounded approbation, and the Morton men plucked up considerable courage. Nebraska cast a solid vote for Blaine, and the announcement was heralded with applause. Nevada split up into three for Bristow, two for Conkling and one for Hayes, and the result brought out no enthusiasm. The Blaine men cheered when New Hampshire cast seven for their favorite and only three for Bristow. Applause followed the announcement of New Jersey's vote of thirteen for Blaine and five for Hayes, but the greatest shouting proceeded from the adherents of the former. The friends of the latter seemed somewhat downcast about this time. New York went almost solid for Conkling, casting sixty-nine for that favorite son and only one for Bristow. The Conkling men shouted for gladness. North Carolina cast nine for Blaine, seven for Conkling, one for Bristow and two for Morton, the Blaine and Conkling men were rejoiced at the new accession of strength, and applauded accordingly. Ohio cast her forty-four votes for Hayes, the announcement being received with cheers and a few hisses from some ill-mannered people in the lofts. Oregon came up squarely with six votes for Blaine, but when with fifty-eight votes, the cheering came from another part of the house, and the Hartranft white hats were swung with a good deal of enthusiasm. Rhode Island's vote of six for Bristow and two for Blaine was cheered by the friends of the former, and at the next turn Morton's friends cheered at South Carolina's vote of thirteen for their favorite and only one for Bristow. Bristow and Morton were even on Tennessee's vote, ten each being cast for each and the remaining four for Blaine. The Bristow men were more hopeful. Texas voted two for Blaine, six for Bristow, three for Conkling, five for Morton, and the cheering was pretty even. Vermont had eight for Bristow, one for Blaine, and one for Hayes, and the Bristow men were again jubilant. Blaine's friends rejoiced at Virginia's sixteen for their candidate, at West Virginia's eight and Wisconsin's twenty. The Territories voted for Blaine with the exception of Wyoming, which went for Bristow. The District of Columbia voted two for Morton.

At the conclusion of the ballot the hall resounded with cheers.

Changing Votes.

As soon as the roll call was completed Senator Alcorn, of Miss., wanted to change the vote of the delegation of that State.

The Chair—"Under the rule there can be no change at present."

Senator Alcorn—"We desire to correct the vote. One of our delegates was absent when our State was called, but subsequently came in and is entitled to vote."

The Chair—"The Convention will please come to order, as a very important point is involved in the pending question. The gentleman from Mississippi made the announcement of the vote as reported from the desk. Subsequently a member from Mississippi, who was reported as absent when the vote was taken in the delegation, came into the hall, and the presumption of the gentleman now is to correct the vote so as to include the vote of the gentleman who was absent when the delegation acted and when the vote was announced. Is any one in favor of 'No,' no?" The Chair desires to say that under the fourth rule adopted yesterday this is laid down, and when any State has announced its vote it shall so stand until the ballot is announced, unless in case of a numerical error."

Another delegate from Mississippi took the floor to argue that the desired change in the vote should be made.

A Wisconsin delegate—"Let the Chair rule on the proposition."

The Mississippi delegate—"The proposed change is strictly in order. The Chairman of the Mississippi delegation was in error in the announcement of the vote. He certainly has, or ought to have, a right to correct an error made in the announcement of the vote."

The Chair—"If the Chairman of a delegation will rise and say that in the announcement of the vote he committed what is called a numerical error, the Chair will hold that he has a right to correct it, but the Chair rules that he has no right to change the vote so as to add one to the number of persons returned as voting."

Senator Alcorn—"I stated I was in error in announcing the vote. It should have been eleven for Morton, three for Bristow, and two for Conkling. I also stated that one member was absent when we acted, but came in subsequently."

The Chair—"Two propositions are involved in the correction, an order made in announcing the vote, which he has a right to do, and the Chair has opened the question for that purpose. Will the gentleman from Mississippi give me his attention, and state how the vote would stand as corrected?"

The chairman of the delegation—"Eleven for Morton, three for Bristow, and one for Conkling."

The Chair—"It is very important now to have everything correctly stated. The gentleman from Mississippi reports the vote of his State as standing eleven for Morton, Bristow three, and Conkling one. Now, upon the other point, do you press the other point of the right of your absent delegate to vote? The point not being pressed, the Chair will announce the vote."

The clerk then read the result of the ballot.

The Chair—"No one having a majority of all the votes, there is no choice. (Cries of 'Proceed to a ballot.') The Secretary will proceed with the call."

Mr. Bingham, of Iowa—"Mr. Chairman, I move that this Convention take a recess of fifteen minutes." (Cries of "No!" "no!"

The motion was lost.

Mr. Orton, of New York—"If it is in order, I suggest that whenever a State is not ready to respond to the call, that it be called at the end of the roll." (Cries of "no," "no.")

The chair—That would create considerable confusion, and is rather in antagonism with the spirit of the rules, which looks to the record of each vote in its order." (Cries of "regular order.")

Second Ballot.

The Convention then proceeded to a second ballot, with the following result:

Alabama—Blaine 16; Bristow 4.

Recapitulation.

Blaine	298	Jewell	00
Morton	111	Conkling	93
Bristow	114	Wheeler	3
Hayes	64	Washburne	1
Hartranft	63

During the call of the roll, when the State of Alabama announced her vote of sixteen for Blaine, this being a gain of four for the candidate from Maine, the adherents of that gentleman on the floor and in the galleries sent up a tremendous yell, which was renewed when the Secretary announced the vote. Upon the announcement of the vote of Connecticut a voluminous hiss from the galleries materially interfered with the call.

A delegate from Kansas moved that the Sergent-at-Arms be ordered to remove from the galleries any person indulging in demonstrations of disapproval.

The Chair—"I think this difficulty will be very much obviated if the people in the galleries will consider for a moment how improper it is for them, who are here purely by favor of the Convention, to be interfering with the business of the Convention. The Chair is very reluctant to interfere with the comfort or enjoyment of any one within this building, but it may become a necessary duty for the Chair to clear the galleries, because the work of the Convention must go on." (Cries of "good" and cheers.)

This eruption of the Chairman produced temporary order, and although at times the crowd became unruly, all demonstrations were promptly suppressed.

When Florida was called the Chairman of the delegation from that State announced its vote in a voice scarcely above a whisper, which elicited from the Chairman of the Convention a request that the delegate from Florida hold up his head like a man and look straight at the Chair. [Laughter.]

The Illinois vote, indicating a loss of three to Blaine, was announced by Colonel Ingersoll in a subdued tone of voice and manner, which drew out considerable comment.

The Chair—"The Chair has been informed that persons in the rear of the hall cannot hear the announcement of the votes. If there be no objection a person will be stationed in the rear of the hall to announce the votes as they are made here."

There was unanimous consent to this proposition, and a man with a good strong voice was selected to repeat the announcements.

The voting then proceeded, with here and there a change on the first ballot, Hartranft, Hayes and Conkling receiving additional strength, and the Bristow and Blaine men picking up and losing a little here and there. When it came to Michigan, there was a shoot on a different track. When one vote was given for Washburne some excitement was raised.

The Pennsylvania Delegation.

When the vote of Pennsylvania was announced as fifty-eight for Hartranft, Mr. J. Smith Suthey, of Chester, rising to his feet, said "Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. The vote of Pennsylvania is not correctly represented. Myself and my colleague representing the Sixth Congressional district wish to cast our votes for James G. Blaine. (Cheers.) We asked the chairman of the delegation to be heard in the Convention, but he declined, and we now ask and demand our votes shall now be recorded to James G. Blaine." (Cheers.)

Objections were raised to this.

The Chair—"This point must be settled before we pass to the next State."

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania—"I ask the attention of the chair to rule three."

Delegation on platform—"Rule six covers the case."

The Chairman—"The Chair will state the case. The Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation rises in his place and reports as the vote of that State fifty-eight votes for John F. Hartranft. The gentleman from the Westchester district, speaking for himself and his colleague of the Sixth Pennsylvania District, and the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Negley, of the fifteenth district, and Mr. Stewart, from the Twenty-first District, rises to a point of order, which is that the report of the vote made by the chairman of the delegation is not the report of the vote cast by the delegation. They, of course, raise a question of the very highest privilege. That point of order being raised, the Chair rules that it is the right of any and of every member equally to vote his sentiments in this Convention." [Cheers, continued for several minutes.]

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvia—"I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Pennsylvania appeals from the decision of the Chair, and the question for the Convention to determine is, shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?" (Cries of "Yes," "yes."

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvania—"We desire to be heard."

The remark was made in a low tone, and owing to the disorder, the Pennsylvania delegates having risen in their seats and seeming to be very greatly excited. During the disorder which prevailed, the question was put, and the Chair was sustained by a large majority.

The Chair—"That question of the right of these gentlemen having been settled, the Chair holds under the order of the House that the four votes of the gentlemen shall be recorded as they elect, they shall be."

Mr. Cessna—"My colleague, Mr. McCormick, asked to be heard before that vote was taken."

The Chair—"I did not hear him."

Mr. McCormick—"The trouble is you did not want to hear me." (Confusion.)

The Chair—"I will say to my colleague from Pittsburgh that his reputation under the Chair is dishonoring to him." (Cheers.)

Col. Thompson, of Indiana—"I trust, sir, in the name of this Convention, you will not turn this Convention into a bear garden. We are here to transact the business of the settlement of a personal controversy."

A delegate—"It is an outrage." (Great disorder.)

Mr. Thompson—"If you [the chair] have personal controversies, settle them outside. We are here to transact the business of the Republican party, [cheers and confusion], not to settle personal disputes. [Voices take the stand.] We are here as the representatives of this great nation, before the world, and this Convention should not be turned into a theatre for the settlement of personal controversies. [Cries of good,' 'good.'] And when the President of this Convention chooses to thrust back a personal insult in the face of one of his colleagues by telling him that he is dishonoring himself, he abuses the privileges which we have confided to him. [Cheers and cries of 'good.'] I protest against it."

A delegate from Indiana—"So do I." (Cheers.)

Mr. Thompson—"In the name of the American people (cries of 'amen' and cheers) I demand, sir, that this Convention shall be heard upon the question as to whether it affirms or disaffirms the decision of the chair." (Voices—"That is right.")

The clerk then read the result of the ballot.

The Chair—"Will the Convention hear the Chair? Will the Convention hear the Chair for a moment?" (Cheers.)

Delegate from Indiana—"We have heard about enough from the Chair." [Sensation.]

Several delegates—"Certainly."

Chairman—"The Chair has not the least desire in the world to interfere with the exercise by the Convention and by every member of the Convention of every right and every privilege which he possesses (Pennsylvania delegates—'Oh,' 'Oh.') and hope there is no delegate within the Convention who knows me after some years of public service who supposes that I would intentionally abuse the powers of the position, (Pennsylvania delegate—'Oh, no,' 'Oh, no,') or that I would do any injustice to any gentleman of this Convention. My colleague from Pittsburgh, Mr. McCormick, irritated me very much when he said that I did not wish to hear him. I say to the Convention, as I said to him, I did not hear him." (Applause.)

Mr. Thompson—"I do not object to that. You told your colleague that he had dishonored himself."

The Ghair—"I am just coming to that point. The gentleman then said: 'You did not hear me because you did not wish to.'"

Delegate from Pennsylvania—"That is right." (Applause.)

The Chairman—"Now, I appeal to the gallant gentleman from Indiana, Colonel Thompson, whether it was very much out of place for a young man to retort in kind a remark of that sort?" (Applause.)

Col. Thompson—"If you want an answer, sir, I will give it to you."

The Chair—"I desire to remark—" (Great disorder and confusion.)

Col. Thompson—"I desire to say, sir, in response to that question that it is out of place for the President of the Convention to use it as an instrument to hurl back his anathemas at his colleagues." (Cheers.)

Out of Order.

Mr. Pearce, of Massachusetts—"I raise the point of order that while the roll call is in order, and after the announcement of a vote, nothing of this kind is in order. Nothing whatever can be done."

The Chair—"Gentlemen, you have given the Chairman of the Convention a chance to say publicly before you all that this is not the place to settle these things."

Mr. Oliver—"There is something I wished to say which concerned the Chairman."

The Chair—"I withdraw the remark."

Mr. Oliver—"Gentlemen, listen to me. I will not give you any trouble." (Cries of "Take your seat," "Order," "Order.")

Mr. Oliver—"The Chair recognized me, and I have a right to make my statement." (Cries of "Order," "Order."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Massachusetts raises the point of order that the Convention is in process of executing its own order, and it can not be interrupted. It is a good point of order and a good way to get rid of the difficulty, that when an announcement is made some gentlemen interested therein say it is a correct announcement, thus raising a question of privilege and insisting upon their right to be received."

A delegate—"The Chair has declared the result."

Mr. Cessna—"Oh, no, we have no vote."

Mr. Thornberg, of Tennessee—"I move that the vote just taken to sustain the Chair shall be reconsidered."

Mr. Cessna—"I second that motion, so as to allow the Pennsylvania delegation to be heard by the Convention."

A delegate—"I move to lay it on the table."

Mr. Cessna—"The gentleman has not the floor. Did not my friend from Tennessee yield me the floor?"

Mr. Thornberg—"No, sir; I did not yield the floor. I move the previous question on my motion."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Tennessee moves to reconsider the vote by which the Chair was sustained."

Several gentlemen claimed the floor.

Mr. Thornberg—"I do not yield the floor. My motion is in order, a motion to reconsider the last vote, and then the Pennsylvania delegation on both sides should be heard." (Great noise and confusion.)

Points of Order.

A delegate from Georgia—"I rise to a point of order."

Mr. Oliver—"I have the floor. This is all wrong."

Delegate from Georgia—"I raise the point that the whole thing is out of order."

The Chair—"That has been raised and overruled, on the ground that it being a question of high personal privilege, it may be rightly brought into the Convention."

Mr. Cessna—"I trust I may come before this Convention. All I ask is that the Convention may understand the position which the Pennsylvania delegation to-day occupies before this Convention and before the country. I feel that my colleague in the chair made his decision without a proper understanding or examination of the rules, or he would not have made it in the way he has. Therefore I shall be compelled to vote for that motion of my friend from Tennessee to reconsider the vote by which that appeal was laid upon the table. I ask the attention of my friend in the chair, and of this Convention, to the second rule of this Convention. 'Each State shall be entitled to double the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, according to the last apportionment. Each territory and the District of Columbia shall be entitled to two votes. The votes of each delegation shall be reported by its Chairman.' Now, the rules provide that after the chairman of each delegation has reported there shall be no change until the next ballot."

Mr. Cessna—"I beg now to read the authority. (Confusion.) I claim the right simply to read to this convention."

The Chair—"The gentleman is entitled to the floor, and I hope the convention will come to order. This is a very important question."

The Position of the Pennsylvania Delegation.

Mr. Cessna—"I am not here to pass any fire brands. I am here in the interest of peace and harmony in Pennsylvania, and in the interest of peace and harmony in this convention and throughout this broad land. (Applause.) No man will be more interested for the final result of this convention than I will if you will allow me to state my position. The delegation to the National Convention, but he declined, and we now ask and demand our votes shall now be recorded to James G. Blaine." (Cheers.)

Objections were raised to this.

The Chair—"This point must be settled before we pass to the next State."

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania—"I ask the attention of the chair to rule three."

Delegation on platform—"Rule six covers the case."

The Chairman—"The Chair will state the case. The Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation rises in his place and reports as the vote of that State fifty-eight votes for John F. Hartranft. The gentleman from the Westchester district, speaking for himself and his colleague of the Sixth Pennsylvania District, and the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Negley, of the fifteenth second District, and Mr. Stewart, from the Twenty-first District, rises to a point of order, which is that the report of the vote made by the chairman of the delegation is not the report of the vote cast by the delegation. They, of course, raise a question of the very highest privilege. That point of order being raised, the Chair rules that it is the right of any and of every member equally to vote his sentiments in this Convention." [Cheers, continued for several minutes.]

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvia—"I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair."

Mr. Oliver—"The Chair recognized me, and I have a right to make my statement." (Cries of "Order," "Order."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Massachusetts raises the point of order that the Convention is in process of executing its own order, and it can not be interrupted. It is a good point of order and a good way to get rid of the difficulty, that when an announcement is made some gentlemen interested therein say it is a correct announcement, thus raising a question of privilege and insisting upon their right to be received."

A delegate—"The Chair has declared the result."

Mr. Cessna—"Oh, no, we have no vote."

Mr. Thornberg, of Tennessee—"I move that the vote just taken to sustain the Chair shall be reconsidered."

Mr. Cessna—"I second that motion, so as to allow the Pennsylvania delegation to be heard by the Convention."

A delegate—"I move to lay it on the table."

Mr. Cessna—"The gentleman has not the floor. Did not my friend from Tennessee yield me the floor?"

Mr. Thornberg—"No, sir; I did not yield the floor. I move the previous question on my motion."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Tennessee moves to reconsider the vote by which the Chair was sustained."

Several gentlemen claimed the floor.

Mr. Thornberg—"I do not yield the floor. My motion is in order, a motion to reconsider the last vote, and then the Pennsylvania delegation on both sides should be heard." (Great noise and confusion.)

Points of Order.

A delegate from Georgia—"I rise to a point of order."

Mr. Oliver—"I have the floor. This is all wrong."

Delegate from Georgia—"I raise the point that the whole thing is out of order."

The Chair—"That has been raised and overruled, on the ground that it being a question of high personal privilege, it may be rightly brought into the Convention."

Mr. Cessna—"I trust I may come before this Convention. All I ask is that the Convention may understand the position which the Pennsylvania delegation to-day occupies before this Convention and before the country. I feel that my colleague in the chair made his decision without a proper understanding or examination of the rules, or he would not have made it in the way he has. Therefore I shall be compelled to vote for that motion of my friend from Tennessee to reconsider the vote by which that appeal was laid upon the table. I ask the attention of my friend in the chair, and of this Convention, to the second rule of this Convention. 'Each State shall be entitled to double the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, according to the last apportionment. Each territory and the District of Columbia shall be entitled to two votes. The votes of each delegation shall be reported by its Chairman.' Now, the rules provide that after the chairman of each delegation has reported there shall be no change until the next ballot."

Mr. Cessna—"I beg now to read the authority. (Confusion.) I claim the right simply to read to this convention."

The Chair—"The gentleman is entitled to the floor, and I hope the convention will come to order. This is a very important question."

The Position of the Pennsylvania Delegation.

Mr. Cessna—"I am not here to pass any fire brands. I am here in the interest of peace and harmony in Pennsylvania, and in the interest of peace and harmony in this convention and throughout this broad land. (Applause.) No man will be more interested for the final result of this convention than I will if you will allow me to state my position. The delegation to the National Convention, but he declined, and we now ask and demand our votes shall now be recorded to James G. Blaine." (Cheers.)

Objections were raised to this.

The Chair—"This point must be settled before we pass to the next State."

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania—"I ask the attention of the chair to rule three."

Delegation on platform—"Rule six covers the case."

The Chairman—"The Chair will state the case. The Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation rises in his place and reports as the vote of that State fifty-eight votes for John F. Hartranft. The gentleman from the Westchester district, speaking for himself and his colleague of the Sixth Pennsylvania District, and the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Negley, of the fifteenth second District, and Mr. Stewart, from the Twenty-first District, rises to a point of order, which is that the report of the vote made by the chairman of the delegation is not the report of the vote cast by the delegation. They, of course, raise a question of the very highest privilege. That point of order being raised, the Chair rules that it is the right of any and of every member equally to vote his sentiments in this Convention." [Cheers, continued for several minutes.]

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvia—"I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Pennsylvania appeals from the decision of the Chair, and the question for the Convention to determine is, shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?" (Cries of "Yes," "yes."

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvania—"We desire to be heard."

The remark was made in a low tone, and owing to the disorder, the Pennsylvania delegates having risen in their seats and seeming to be very greatly excited. During the disorder which prevailed, the question was put, and the Chair was sustained by a large majority.

The Chair—"That question of the right of these gentlemen having been settled, the Chair holds under the order of the House that the four votes of the gentlemen shall be recorded as they elect, they shall be."

Mr. Cessna—"My colleague, Mr. McCormick, asked to be heard before that vote was taken."

The Chair—"I did not hear him."

Mr. McCormick—"The trouble is you did not want to hear me." (Confusion.)

The Chair—"I will say to my colleague from Pittsburgh that his reputation under the Chair is dishonoring to him." (Cheers.)

Col. Thompson, of Indiana—"I trust, sir, in the name of this Convention, you will not turn this Convention into a bear garden. We are here to transact the business of the settlement of a personal controversy."

A delegate—"It is an outrage." (Great disorder.)

Mr. Thompson—"If you [the chair] have personal controversies, settle them outside. We are here to transact the business of the Republican party, [cheers and confusion], not to settle personal disputes. [Voices take the stand.] We are here as the representatives of this great nation, before the world, and this Convention should not be turned into a theatre for the settlement of personal controversies. [Cries of good,' 'good.'] And when the President of this Convention chooses to hurl back a personal insult in the face of one of his colleagues by telling him that he is dishonoring himself, he abuses the privileges which we have confided to him. [Cheers and cries of good.'] I protest against it."

A delegate from Indiana—"So do I." (Cheers.)

Mr. Thompson—"In the name of the American people (cries of 'amen' and cheers) I demand, sir, that this Convention shall be heard upon the question as to whether it affirms or disaffirms the decision of the chair." (Voices—"That is right.")

The Chair—"Will the Convention hear the Chair? Will the Convention hear the Chair for a moment?" (Cheers.)

Delegate from Indiana—"We have heard about enough from the Chair." [Sensation.]

Several delegates—"Certainly."

Chairman—"The Chair has not the least desire in the world to interfere with the exercise by the Convention and by every member of the Convention of every right and every privilege which he possesses (Pennsylvania delegates—'Oh,' 'Oh.') and hope there is no delegate within the Convention who knows me after some years of public service who supposes that I would intentionally abuse the powers of the position, (Pennsylvania delegate—'Oh, no,' 'Oh, no,') or that I would do any injustice to any gentleman of this Convention. My colleague from Pittsburgh, Mr. McCormick, irritated me very much when he said that I did not wish to hear him. I say to the Convention, as I said to him, I did not hear him." (Applause.)

Mr. Thompson—"I do not object to that. You told your colleague that he had dishonored himself."

The Ghair—"I am just coming to that point. The gentleman then said: 'You did not hear me because you did not wish to.'"

Delegate from Pennsylvania—"That is right." (Applause.)

The Chairman—"Now, I appeal to the gallant gentleman from Indiana, Colonel Thompson, whether it was very much out of place for a young man to retort in kind a remark of that sort?" (Applause.)

Col. Thompson—"If you want an answer, sir, I will give it to you."

The Chair—"I desire to remark—" (Great disorder and confusion.)

Col. Thompson—"I desire to say, sir, in response to that question that it is out of place for the President of the Convention to use it as an instrument to hurl back his anathemas at his colleagues." (Cheers.)

Out of Order.

Mr. Pearce, of Massachusetts—"I raise the point of order that while the roll call is in order, and after the announcement of a vote, nothing of this kind is in order. Nothing whatever can be done."

The Chair—"Gentlemen, you have given the Chairman of the Convention a chance to say publicly before you all that this is not the place to settle these things."

Mr. Oliver—"There is something I wished to say which concerned the Chairman."

The Chair—"I withdraw the remark."

Mr. Oliver—"Gentlemen, listen to me. I will not give you any trouble." (Cries of "Take your seat," "Order," "Order.")

Mr. Oliver—"The Chair recognized me, and I have a right to make my statement." (Cries of "Order," "Order."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Massachusetts raises the point of order that the Convention is in process of executing its own order, and it can not be interrupted. It is a good point of order and a good way to get rid of the difficulty, that when an announcement is made some gentlemen interested therein say it is a correct announcement, thus raising a question of privilege and insisting upon their right to be received."

A delegate—"The Chair has declared the result."

Mr. Cessna—"The gentleman has not the floor. Did not my friend from Tennessee yield me the floor?"

Mr. Thornberg—"No, sir; I did not yield the floor. I move the previous question on my motion."

Several gentlemen claimed the floor.

CINCINNATI, June 16, 1876.

Well, the battle is over and the Blaine cohorts fold their banners in defeat. They fought well, but when all the other candidates sunk their rivalries and started in with the war cry "anything to beat Blaine," the doom of the gallant commoner of Maine was sealed. It was one of the most desperate political battles known in our history, and it must be a matter of pride for Blaine, even in his defeat, to remember that he was only compelled to bow to the odds combined against him. The result has been as great a surprise here as it is, doubtless, in Pittsburgh; for when the Convention opened this morning the general feeling was that Blaine would make it by the third ballot. When that passed however, opinion changed; it was conceded that the ballot had decided his defeat. Four more ballots were taken however before the result was achieved. The details of the fight will be given in the regular report, and will show how the field was won for Hayes.

The feature of the whole day which excited liveliest discussion in the Convention, and which is freely talked of to night, is the action of the Cameron crowd. Had the Pennsylvania delegation gone to Blaine, as had been expected, on the third ballot, his election would have been assured. Cameron, however, played the despot, the foes of Blaine helped him along, the majority of the delegation was swindled out of its rights, and so the State was really antagonized to Blaine. The feeling among the Blaine men against the Cameron crowd is very bitter, and while they endorse the successful candidate, they will not be likely to forget the Camerons.

The feeling here after the smoke of the battle had cleared away, was that the Convention had but as excellent ticket in the field. The more it is looked at the better it appears. It is conceded, will sweep Ohio like a tornado, and Wheeler will be alike popular in New York. These two States were looked upon as doubtful, and the ticket that secures them really secures victory. That is the drift of talk to-night. There is great excitement here to-night over the result. The Cincinnati people wanted Bristow, of course, but as an Ohio man has been chosen, they are jubilantly satisfied.

Cincinnati possesses no further attractions for visitors now and the hegira commenced as soon as the result of the ballots for President was announced. Hundreds left the city early to-night, and every outgoing train takes away a load.

By to-morrow night the city will have resumed its graveyard quietude. You will will see the majority of the Pittsburghers at home to-morrow. H. M. L.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—The Convention was late in assembling. The weather was cool. The galleries were two-thirds full, and much interest and excitement prevailed.

The Convention was called to order at 10:35. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Morgan, of the First Episcopal Church.

Recapitulation.

Blaine	285	Hartranft	86
Morton	124	Jewell	11
Bristow	113	Conkling	99
Hayes	61

The announcement of Minnesota's ten votes for Blaine was received with shouts of applause from the galleries. One of the Mississippi delegates was absent, making the total vote fifteen, divided into three for Bristow and twelve for Morton. The cheering was not particularly noticeable.

When Missouri cast fourteen for Blaine, twelve for Morton, two for Bristow, one for Conkling and one for Hayes, the Blaine men from all parts of the hall expressed their unbounded approbation, and the Morton men plucked up considerable courage. Nebraska cast a solid vote for Blaine, and the announcement was heralded with applause. Nevada split up the three for Bristow, two for Conkling and one for Hayes, and the result brought out no enthusiasm. The Blaine men cheered when New Hampshire cast seven for their favorite and only three for Bristow. Applause followed the announcement of New Jersey's vote of thirteen for Blaine and five for Hayes, but the greatest shouting proceeded from the adherents of the former. The friends of the latter seemed somewhat downcast about this time. New York went almost solid for Conkling, casting sixty-nine for that favorite son and only one for Bristow. The Conkling men shouted for gladness. North Carolina cast nine for Blaine, seven for Conkling, one for Bristow and two for Morton, the Blaine and Conkling men were rejoiced at the new accession of strength, and applauded accordingly. Ohio cast her forty-four votes solid for Hayes, the announcement being received with cheers and a few hisses from some ill-mannered people in the lofts. Oregon came up squarely with six votes for Blaine, but when with fifty-eight votes, the cheering came from another part of the house, and the Hartranft white hats were swung with a good deal of enthusiasm. Rhode Island's vote of six for Bristow and two for Blaine was cheered by the friends of the former, and at the next Morton's friends cheered at South Carolina's vote of thirteen for their favorite and only one for Bristow. Bristow and Morton were even on Tennessee's vote, ten votes being cast for each and the remaining four for Blaine. The Bristow men were more hopeful. Texas voted two for Blaine, six for Bristow, three for Conkling, five for Morton, and the cheering was pretty even. Vermont had eight for Bristow, one for Blaine, and one for Hayes, and the Bristow men were again jubilant. Blaine's friends rejoiced as Virginia's sixteen for their candidate, at West Virginia's eight and Wisconsin's twenty. The Territories voted for Blaine with the exception of Wyoming, which went for Bristow. The District of Columbia voted two for Morton.

At the conclusion of the ballot the hall resounded with cheers.

Changing Votes.

As soon as the roll call was completed Senator Alcorn, of Miss., wanted to change the vote of the delegation of that State.

The Chair—"Under the rule there can be no change at present."

Senator Alcorn—"We desire to correct the vote. One of our delegates was absent when our State was called, but subsequently came in."

The Chair—"The Convention will please come to order, as a very important point is involved in the pending question. The gentleman from Mississippi made the announcement of the vote as reported from the desk. Subsequently a member from Mississippi, who was reported as absent when the vote was taken in the delegation, came into the hall, and the proposition of the gentleman now is to correct the vote so as to include the vote of the gentleman who was absent when the delegation acted and when the vote was announced. [Cries of 'No, no!'] The Chair desires to say that under the fourth rule adopted yesterday this is debatable, and when any State has announced its vote it shall so stand until the ballot is announced, unless in case of a numerical error."

Another delegate from Mississippi took the floor to argue that the desired change in the vote should be made.

A Wisconsin delegate—"Let the Chair rule on the proposition."

The Mississippi delegate—"The proposed change is strictly in order. The Chairman of the Mississippi delegation was in error in the announcement of the vote. He certainly has, or ought to have, a right to correct an error made in the announcement of the vote."

The Chair—"If the Chairman of a delegation will rise and say that in the announcement of the vote he committed what is called a numerical error, the Chair will hold that he has a right to correct it, but the Chair rules that he has no right to change the vote so as to add one to the number of persons returned as voting."

Senator Alcorn—"I stated I was in error in announcing the vote. It should have been eleven for Morton, three for Bristow, and one for Conkling. I also stated that one member was absent when we acted, but came in subsequently."

The Chair—"Two propositions are involved—one is to correct an order made in announcing the vote, which he has a right to, and which the Chair has conceded the question for that purpose. Will the gentleman from Mississippi give me his attention, and state how the vote would stand as corrected?"

The chairman of the delegation—"Eleven for Morton, three for Bristow, and one for Conkling."

The Chair—"It is very important now to have everything correctly stated. The gentleman from Mississippi reports the vote of his State as standing eleven for Morton, Bristow three, and Conkling one. Now, upon the other point, do you press the other point of the right of your absent delegate to vote? The point not being pressed, the Chair will announce the vote."

The clerk then read the result of the ballot.

The Chair—"No one having a majority of all the votes, there is no choice. (Cries of 'Proceed to a ballot.') The Secretary will proceed with the call."

Mr. Bingham, of Iowa—"Mr. Chairman, I move that this Convention take a recess of fifteen minutes." (Cries of "No!" "no!" The motion was lost.

Mr. Orton, of New York—"If it is in order, I suggest that whenever a State is not ready to respond to the call, that it be called at the end of the roll." (Cries of "no," "no.").

The chair—That would create considerable confusion, and is rather in antagonism with the spirit of the rules, which looks to the record of each vote in its order." (Cries of "regular order.")

Second Ballot.

The Convention then proceeded to a second ballot, with the following result:

Alabama—Blaine 16; Bristow 4.
Arkansas—Blaine 1; Morton 11.

Recapitulation.

Blaine	298	Jewell	90
Morton	111	Conkling	93
Bristow	114	Wheeler	3
Hayes	64	Washburne	1
Hartranft	63

During the call of the roll, when the State of Alabama announced her vote of sixteen for Blaine, this being again of four for the candidate from Maine, the adherents of that gentleman on the floor and in the galleries sent up a tremendous yell, which was renewed when the Secretary announced the vote. Upon the announcement of the vote of Connecticut a voluminous hiss from the galleries materially intefered with the call.

A delegate from Kansas moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms be ordered to remove from the galleries any person indulging in demonstrations of disapproval.

The Chair—"I think this difficulty will be very much obviated if the people in the galleries will consider for a moment how improper it is for them, who are here purely by favor of the Convention, to be interfering with the business of the Convention. The Chair is very reluctant to interfere with the comfort or enjoyment of any one within this building, but it may become a necessary duty for the Chair to clear the galleries, because the work of the Convention must go on." (Cries of "good" and cheers.)

This eruption of the Chairman produced temporary order, and although at times the crowd became unruly, all demonstrations were promptly suppressed.

When Florida was called the Chairman of the delegation from that State announced its vote in a voice scarcely above a whisper, which elicited from the Chairman of the Convention a request that the delegate from Florida hold up his head like a man and look straight at the Chair. (Laughter.)

The Illinois vote, indicating a loss of three to Blaine, was announced by Colonel Ingersoll in a subdued tone of voice and manner, which drew out considerable comment.

The Chair—"The Chair has been informed that persons in the rear of the hall cannot hear the announcement of the votes. If there be no objection a person will be stationed in the rear of the hall to announce the votes as they are made here."

There was unanimous consent to this proposition, and a man with a good strong voice was selected to repeat the announcements.

The voting then proceeded, with here and there a change on the first ballot, Hartranft, Hayes and Conkling receiving additional strength, and the Bristow and Blaine men picking up and losing a little here and there. When it came to Michigan, there was a shout as the name Logan was called. When one vote was given for Washburne some excitement was raised.

The Pennsylvania Delegation.

When the vote of Pennsylvania was announced as fifty-eight for Hartranft, Mr. Smith Suthey, of Chester, rising to his feet, said "Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. The vote of Pennsylvania was not correctly represented. Myself and each alternate representing the Seventh Congressional district wish to cast our votes for James G. Blaine. (Cheers.) We asked the chairman of the delegation to so report to the Convention, but he refused, and we now ask and demand our votes shall now be recorded to James G. Blaine." (Cheers.)

Objections were raised to this.

The Chair—"This point must be settled before we pass to the next State."

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania—"I ask the attention of the chair to rule three."

Delegate on platform—"Rule six covers the case."

The Chairman—"The Chair will state the case. The Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation rises in his place and reports as the vote of that State fifty-eight votes for John F. Hartranft. The gentleman from the Westchester district, speaking for himself and his colleague of the Ninth Pennsylvania District, and the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Hampton, of the Twenty-second District, and Mr. Stewart, from the Twenty-first District, rises to a point of order, which is that the report of the vote made by the chairman of the delegation is not the report of the vote cast in the delegation. They, of course, raise a question of the very highest privilege. That point of order being raised, the Chair rules that it is the right of any and of every member equally to vote his sentiments in this Convention." [Cheers, continued for several minutes.]

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvia—"I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Pennsylvania appeals from the decision of the Chair, and the question for the Convention to decide is, shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?" (Cries of "Yes," "yes.")

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvania—"We desire to be heard."

This remark was made in a low tone, and owing to the disorder, the Pennsylvania delegates having risen in their seats and being the disorder which prevailed, the question was put, and the Chair was sustained by a large majority.

The Chair—"That question of the right of these gentlemen having been settled, the Chair holds under the order of the body that the four votes of the gentlemen shall be recorded as they elect, they shall be." Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. McCormick, asked to be heard before that vote was taken.

The Chair—"I did not hear him."

Mr. McCormick—"The trouble is you did not want to hear me." (Confusion.)

The Chair—"I will say to my colleague from Pittsburgh that his insinuation that the Chair is dishonoring to him." (Cheers.)

Col. Thompson, of Indiana—"I trust, sir, in the name of this Convention, you will not turn this Convention into a debating club for the settlement of a personal controversy."

A delegate—"It is an outrage." (Great disorder.)

Mr. Thompson—"If you [the chair] have personal controversies, settle them outside. We are here to transact the business of the Republican party. [cheers and confusion], not to settle personal disputes. (Voices take the stand.) We are here as the representatives of the greatest party in the world, and this Convention should not be turned into a debating club for the settlement of personal controversies. [Cries of 'good,' 'good.'] And when the President of this Convention chooses to hurl back a personal insult in the face of one of his colleagues, selling him that he is dishonoring himself, he abuses the privileges which we have confided to him. [Cheers and cries of 'good.'] I protest against it."

A delegate from Indiana—"So do I." [Cheers.]

Mr. Thompson—"In the name of the American people [cries of 'amen' and cheers] I demand, sir, that this Convention shall be heard upon the question as to whether it affirms or disaffirms the decision of the chair." (Voices—"That is right.")

The Chair—"Will the Convention hear the Chair? Will the Convention hear the Chair for a moment?"

Delegate from Indiana—"We have heard about enough from the Chair." [Sensation.]

Several delegates—"Certainly."

Chairman—"The Chair has not the least desire in the world to interfere with the exercise by the Convention and by every member of the Convention of every right and every privilege which he possesses (Pennsylvania delegates—'Oh,' 'Oh.') I hope there is no delegate within the Convention who knows me after some years of public service who supposes that I would intentionally abuse the power of the position, (Pennsylvania delegate—'Oh, no,' 'Oh, no,'), or that I would do any injustice to any gentleman of this Convention." My colleague from Pittsburgh, Mr. McCormick, irritated me very much when he said that I did not wish to hear him. I say to the Convention, as I said to him, I did not hope him." (Applause.)

Mr. Thompson—"I do not object to that. You told your colleague that he had dishonored himself." (Sensation.)

The Chair—"I am just coming to that point. The gentleman then said: 'You did not hear me because you did not wish to.'"

Delegate from Pennsylvania—"That is right." (Applause.)

The Chairman—"Now, I appeal to the gallant gentleman from Indiana, Colonel Thompson, whether it was very much out of place for a young man to retort in kind a remark of that sort?" (Applause.)

Col. Thompson—"If you want an answer, sir, I will give it to you."

The Chair—"I desire to remark—" (Great disorder and confusion.)

Col Thompson—"I desire to say, sir, in response to that question that it is out of place for the President of the Convention to use it as an instrument to hurl back his anathemas at his colleagues." (Cheers.)

Out of Order.

Mr. Pearce, of Massachusetts—"I raise the point of order that while the roll call is in order, and after the announcement of a vote, nothing of this kind is in order. Nothing whatever can be done."

The Chair—"Gentlemen, you have given the Chairman of the Convention a chance to say publicly before you all that this is not the place to settle these things."

Mr. Oliver—"There is something I wished to say which concerned the Chairman."

The Chair—"I withdraw the remark."

Mr. Oliver—"Gentlemen, listen to me. I will not give you any trouble." (Cries of "Take your seat," "Order," "Order.")

Mr. Oliver—"The Chair recognized me, and I have a right to make my statement." (Cries of "Order," "Order."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Massachusetts raises the point of order that the Convention is in process of executing its own order, and it can not be interrupted. It is a good point of order and a good way to get rid of the difficulty, that when an announcement is made some gentlemen interested therein say it is a correct announcement, thus raising a question of privilege and insisting upon their right to be received."

A delegate—"The Chair has declared the result."

Mr. Cessna—"Oh, no, we have no vote."

Mr. Thornberg, of Tennessee—"I move that the vote just taken to sustain the Chair shall be reconsidered."

Mr. Cessna—"I second that motion, so as to allow the Pennsylvania delegation to be heard by the Convention."

A delegate—"I move to lay it on the table."

Mr. Cessna—"The gentleman has not the floor. Did not my friend from Tennessee yield me the floor?"

Mr. Thornberg—"No, sir; I did not yield the floor. I move the previous question on my motion."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Tennessee moves to reconsider the vote by which the Chair was sustained."

Several gentlemen claimed the floor.

Mr. Thornberg—"I do not yield the floor. My motion is in order, a motion to reconsider the last vote, and then the Pennsylvania delegation on both sides should be heard." (Great noise and confusion.)

Points of Order.

A delegate from Georgia—"I rise to a point of order."

Mr. Oliver—"I have the floor. This is all wrong."

Delegate from Georgia—"I raise the point that the whole thing is out of order."

The Chair—"That has been raised and overruled, on the ground that it being a question of high personal privilege, it may be rightly brought into the Convention."

Mr. Cessna—"I trust I may come before this Convention. All I ask is that the Convention may understand the position which the Pennsylvania delegation to-day occupies before this Convention and before the country. I feel that my colleague in the chair made his decision without a proper understanding or examination of the rules, or he would not have rendered it in the way he has. Therefore I shall be compelled to vote for that motion of my friend from Tennessee to reconsider the vote by which that appeal was laid upon the table. I ask the attention of my friend in the chair, and of this Convention, to the second rule of this Convention. Each State shall be entitled to double the number of Senators and Representatives in Congress, according to the last apportionment. Each territory and the District of Columbia shall be entitled to two votes. The votes of each delegation shall be reported by its chairman." Now, the rules provide that after the chairman of each delegation has reported there shall be no change until the next ballot."

Mr. Cessna—"I only ask to read the authority. (Confusion.) I claim the right simply to read to this convention."

The Chair—"The gentleman is entitled to the floor, and I hope the Convention will come to order. This is a very important question."

The Position of the Pennsylvania Delegation.

Mr. Cessna—"I am here to pass any fire brands. I am here in the interest of peace and harmony in Pennsylvania, and in the interest of peace and harmony in this convention and throughout this broad land. I appeal to representatives of the Seventh Congressional district wish to cast our votes for James G. Blaine. (Cheers.) We asked the chairman of the delegation to so report to the Convention, but he refused, and we now ask and demand our votes shall now be recorded to James G. Blaine." (Cheers.)

Objections were raised to this.

The Chair—"This point must be settled before we pass to the next State."

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania—"I ask the attention of the chair to rule three."

Delegate on platform—"Rule six covers the case."

The Chairman—"The Chair will state the case. The Chairman of the Pennsylvania delegation rises in his place and reports as the vote of that State fifty-eight votes for John F. Hartranft. The gentleman from the Westchester district, speaking for himself and his colleague of the Ninth Pennsylvania District, and the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Hampton, of the Twenty-second District, and Mr. Stewart, from the Twenty-first District, rises to a point of order, which is that the report of the vote made by the chairman of the delegation is not the report of the vote cast in the delegation. They, of course, raise a question of the very highest privilege. That point of order being raised, the Chair rules that it is the right of any and of every member equally to vote his sentiments in this Convention." [Cheers, continued for several minutes.]

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvia—"I respectfully appeal from the decision of the Chair."

The Chair—"The gentleman from Pennsylvania appeals from the decision of the Chair, and the question for the Convention to decide is, shall the decision of the Chair be sustained?" (Cries of "Yes," "yes."

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvania—"We desire to be heard."

This remark was made in a low tone, and owing to the disorder, the Pennsylvania delegates having risen in their seats and being the disorder which prevailed, the question was put, and the Chair was sustained by a large majority.

The Chair—"That question of the right of these gentlemen having been settled, the Chair holds under the order of the body that the four votes of the gentlemen shall be recorded as they elect, they shall be." Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. McCormick, asked to be heard before that vote was taken.

The Chair—"I did not hear him."

Mr. McCormick—"The trouble is you did not want to hear me." (Confusion.)

The Chair—"I will say to my colleague from Pittsburgh that his insinuation that the Chair is dishonoring to him." (Cheers.)

Col. Thompson, of Indiana—"I trust, sir, in the name of this Convention, you will not turn this Convention into a debating club for the settlement of a personal controversy."

A delegate—"It is an outrage." (Great disorder.)

Mr. Thompson—"If you [the chair] have personal controversies, settle them outside. We are here to transact the business of the Republican party. [cheers and confusion], not to settle personal disputes. (Voices take the stand.) We are here as the representatives of the greatest party in the world, and this Convention should not be turned into a debating club for the settlement of personal controversies. [Cries of 'good,' 'good.'] And when the President of this Convention chooses to hurl back a personal insult in the face of one of his colleagues, selling him that he is dishonoring himself, he abuses the privileges which we have confided to him. [Cheers and cries of 'good.'] I protest against it."

A delegate from Indiana—"So do I." [Cheers.]

Mr. Thompson—"In the name of the American people [cries of 'amen' and cheers] I demand, sir, that this Convention shall be heard upon the question as to whether it affirms or disaffirms the decision of the chair." (Voices—"That is right.")

The Chair—"Will the Convention hear the Chair? Will the Convention hear the Chair for a moment?"

Delegate from Indiana—"We have heard about enough from the Chair." [Sensation.]

Several delegates—"Certainly."

Chairman—"The Chair has not the least desire in the world to interfere with the exercise by the Convention and by every member of the Convention of every right and every privilege which he possesses (Pennsylvania delegates—'Oh,' 'Oh.') I hope there is no delegate within the Convention who knows me after some years of public service who supposes that I would intentionally abuse the power of the position, (Pennsylvania delegate—'Oh, no,' 'Oh, no,'), or that I would do any injustice to any gentleman of this Convention." My colleague from Pittsburgh, Mr. McCormick, irritated me very much when he said that I did not wish to hear him. I say to the Convention, as I said to him, I did not hope him." (Applause.)

Mr. Thompson—"I do not object to that. You told your colleague that he had dishonored himself." (Sensation.)

The Chair—"I am just coming to that point. The gentleman then said: 'You did not hear me because you did not wish to.'"

Delegate from Pennsylvania—"That is right." (Applause.)

The Chairman—"Now, I appeal to the gallant gentleman from Indiana, Colonel Thompson, whether it was very much out of place for a young man to retort in kind a remark of that sort?" (Applause.)

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT,
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, of Ohio.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
WM. A. WHEELER, of New York.

PETROLEUM at Antwerp 28¼f

BONDS at Frankfort, new 5s, 102¼

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 112⅝@112¾.

THE NOMINATIONS.

The machine politicians have their triumph in the defeat of BLAINE. They have not made their point, so far as to nominate the man they desired to have, but they did what to them was next in importance to this, defeated the man the people desired to nominate. Since this was done, we accept Governor HAYES as an excellent compromise candidate, and have no word of reproach or blame to attach to him. He was a gallant soldier and has rendered his State and the country important service in civil life. We shall support him earnestly and heartily, not merely because he is the nominee of the party, but because he is a man of pure character, and unsullied integrity, and worthy the high honor bestowed upon him. We think, however, that BLAINE was the man under whom a stronger battle could have been fought, and a grander victory achieved. The only item in this direction, that we need specially mention, is the fact that the Pennsylvania delegation, as usual, frittered away its strength and influence without any result, of a favorable character. It is now perfectly clear that DON CAMERON and clique had sold out to CONKLING, and played their cards so as to prevent the vote going to BLAINE, if it could not be controlled for CONKLING. We have not a shadow of a doubt in our mind on this subject. Aside from all other evidences, is the fact that the delegation was held together by an apparent increase of the HARTRANFT vote, all of which came from CONKLING, and was evidently given as a means of holding the Pennsylvania delegation from going over to BLAINE, while from other sources, they defeated him. If our readers will be at the pains to analyze the several votes, they will see that this is true. Our delegation was held together by the cry that HARTRANFT must not be deserted while he was gaining from other States, yet the gains made by him represented an equal loss from CONKLING'S vote. Yet the BLAINE men allowed themselves to be held under this transparent ruse, until their choice was defeated. We never knew a set of men to be tricked so completely by so transparent a dodge as this. It was in their power, and it was their duty, when the third ballot disclosed clearly these tactics, to have demanded a consultation, and by urging the unit rule, have required that the vote be given to BLAINE.

As a result, Pennsylvania occupies her old place—the tail-piece in a Presidential nomination. In doing this it has insulted the preferences of the people of Western Pennsylvania. We do not know of many Republicans who did not prefer BLAINE, in the western part of the State, and this was generally true at the east. Yet against the sentiment of the party the State Ring arrayed itself, and, by tactics which ought not to have succeeded, neutralized the force of the State, whilst others involved in the plot defeated BLAINE. At last, when HAYES was nominated, the delegation trailed along to give its tardy sanction to what had been done. We come out of the Cincinnati Convention with a record for bargaining and duplicity blacker than ever. We have had no positive part even in nominating HAYES, while the evidence that the delegation was sold and delivered to CONKLING, in so far as the defeat of BLAINE is concerned, is too clear for a moment's doubt. Of course, a reward will be claimed of HAYES for the negative service rendered, but we greatly mistake the man if he deals with a party whose only recommendation is that of duplicity. CAMERON held his delegation back, while others slaughtered BLAINE. We therefore estimate that Pennsylvania is nothing in the councils of the next administration. What our own people may think or do toward a ring that would use so honorable a name as that of Governor HARTRANFT as a mere shuttlecock for ROSCOE CONKLING, we will know ere long.

This aside, and we may add that while we believe Governor HARTRANFT would have been a better compromise candidate than HAYES, in that he has more positive strength, yet we do not underestimate the character and record of the nominee. He is very popular in Ohio, and is greatly admired for his personal qualities and public services. It remains for the party to rally to his aid, and to remember that the battle is one of principle, as well as for personal preferences. The Republican party is our love, far beyond the candidate we may present.

The nominee for Vice President, Hon. WILLIAM A. WHEELER, of New York, was our first choice for that position, and we accept his selection as giving strength to the ticket. He is, at present, a member of Congress, and is the person who compromised the difficulties in Louisiana, more than a year ago. As Congressman he has rendered valuable service, and is well known as a gentleman of finely balanced intellect, and a Republican of the purest and best character. A better selection for the second place on the ticket could not have been well made. We fully, heartily and completely endorse his nomination. Had the ticket been BLAINE and WHEELER, it would have carried the country from Maine to Georgia, and the enthusiasm for it would have been unparalleled. HAYES and WHEELER can be elected, but the canvass will not be attended by the enthusiasm which would have been aroused for the other names. Still, we bow to a destiny it is not in our power to control. We do it, however, feeling that our delegation deserves nothing but contempt and shame, but that the ticket is far more acceptable than it would have been with CONKLING at its head. Without farther remark therefore, we nail the ticket to our mast head.

—Official returns made to the Bureau of Statistics show there arrived at the port of New York during the month of May, 1876, 13,310 immigrants, of whom 7758 were males and 5552 females. There came from England, 2085; Scotland, 397; Ireland, 2230; Germany, 4252; Denmark, 374; Norway 430; Sweden, 1013; Austria, 867; France, 298; and Italy, 458.

—THE Rev. John R. PATTON, of the Pine street Presbyterian church, Harrisburg, learning that his congregation were on the point of adding $300 a year to his salary, said he would peremptorily refuse to accept the increase, in consideration of the fact that there were a number of poor in the congregation who needed assistance.

Crop Notes.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

SHALER TOWNSHIP, June 15, 1876.

Harvest is now approaching and the crops will not be very large. Some rye fields are making a fair show. Wheat and oats will be less than average. The corn may do well if the season should not be very dry. Some clover is now about ripe enough for the scythe. If dry weather should continue the grain will soon ripen, but the heads will not be well filled. Cherries are beginning to ripen, but the crop of them and other fruits will be but small. Potatoes may do well, but the bugs are now troublesome to them, the farmers applying Paris green to them liberally.

The school board has organized and made some arrangements for the next term of school. A new school house is to be built, and the term for next year is to be seven months, commencing about the first of October.

Rural affairs in Indiana township are essentially the same as those of Shaler.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT,
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, of Ohio.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
WM. A. WHEELER, of New York.

PETROLEUM at Antwerp 28½f

BONDS at Frankfort, new 5s, 102½

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 112¾@112¾.

THE NOMINATIONS.

The machine politicians have their triumph in the defeat of BLAINE. They have not made their point, so far as to nominate the man they desired to have, but they did what to them was next in importance to this, defeated the man the people desired to nominate. Since this was done, we accept Governor HAYES as an excellent compromise candidate, and have no word of reproach or blame to attach to him. He was a gallant soldier and has rendered his State and the country important service in civil life. We shall support him earnestly and heartily, not merely because he is the nominee of the party, but because he is a man of pure character, and unsullied integrity, and worthy the high honor bestowed upon him. We think, however, that BLAINE was the man under whom a stronger battle could have been fought, and a grander victory achieved. The only item in this direction, that we need specially mention, is the fact that the Pennsylvania delegation, as usual, frittered away its strength and influence without any result, of a favorable character. It is now perfectly clear that DON CAMERON and clique had sold out to CONKLING, and played their cards so as to prevent the vote going to BLAINE, if it could not be controlled for CONKLING. We have not a shadow of a doubt in our mind on this subject. Aside from all other evidences, is the fact that the delegation was held together by an apparent increase of the HARTRANFT vote, all of which came from CONKLING, and was evidently given as a means of holding the Pennsylvania delegation from going over to BLAINE, while from other sources, they defeated him. If our readers will be at the pains to analyze the several votes, they will see that this is true. Our delegation was held together by the cry that HARTRANFT must not be deserted while he was gaining from other States, yet the gains made by him represented an equal loss from CONKLING'S vote. Yet the BLAINE men allowed themselves to be held under this transparent ruse, until their choice was defeated. We never knew a set of men to be tricked so completely by so transparent a dodge as this. It was in their power, and it was their duty, when the third ballot disclosed clearly these tactics, to have demanded a consultation, and by urging the unit rule, have required that the vote be given to BLAINE.

As a result, Pennsylvania occupies her old place—the tail-piece in a Presidential nomination. In doing this it has insulted the preferences of the people of Western Pennsylvania. We do not know of many Republicans who did not prefer BLAINE, in the western part of the State, and this was generally true at the east. Yet against the sentiment of the party the State Ring arrayed itself, and, by tactics which ought not to have succeeded, neutralized the force of the State, whilst others involved in the plot defeated BLAINE. At last, when HAYES was nominated, the delegation trailed along to give its tardy sanction to what had been done. We come out of the Cincinnati Convention with a record for bargaining and duplicity blacker than ever. We have had no positive part even in nominating HAYES, while the evidence that the delegation was sold and delivered to CONKLING, in so far as the defeat of BLAINE is concerned, is too clear for a moment's doubt.

Of course, a reward will be claimed of HAYES for the negative service rendered, but we greatly mistake the man if he deals with a party whose only recommendation is that of duplicity. CAMERON held his delegation back, while others slaughtered BLAINE. We therefore estimate that Pennsylvania is nothing in the councils of the next administration. What our own people may think or do toward a ring that would use so honorable a name as that of Governor HARTRANFT as a mere shuttlecock for ROSCOE CONKLING, we will know ere long.

This aside, and we may add that while we believe Governor HARTRANFT would have been a better compromise candidate than HAYES, in that he has more positive strength, yet we do not underestimate the character and record of the nominee. He is very popular in Ohio, and is greatly admired for his personal qualities and public services. It remains for the party to rally to his aid, and to remember that the battle is one of principle, as well as for personal preferences. The Republican party is our love, far beyond the candidate we may present.

The nominee for Vice President, Hon. WILLIAM A. WHEELER, of New York, was our first choice for that position, and we accept his selection as giving strength to the ticket. He is, at present, a member of Congress, and is the person who compromised the difficulties in Louisiana, more than a year ago. As Congressman he has rendered valuable service, and is well known as a gentleman of finely balanced intellect, and a Republican of the purest and best character. A better selection for the second place on the ticket could not have been well made. We fully, heartily and completely endorse his nomination. Had the ticket been BLAINE and WHEELER, it would have carried the country from Maine to Georgia, and the enthusiasm for it would have been unparalleled. HAYES and WHEELER can be elected, but the canvass will not be attended by the enthusiasm which would have been aroused for the other names. Still, we bow to a destiny it is not in our power to control. We do it, however, feeling that our delegation deserves nothing but contempt and shame, but that the ticket is far more acceptable than it would have been with CONKLING at its head. Without farther remark therefore, we nail the ticket to our mast head.

—Official returns made to the Bureau of Statistics show there arrived at the port of New York during the month of May, 1876, 13,310 immigrants, of whom 7758 were males and 5552 females. There came from England, 2085; Scotland, 397; Ireland, 2230; Germany, 4252; Denmark, 274; Norway 450; Sweden, 1013; Austria, 863; France, 298; and Italy, 468.

THE Rev. JOHN R. PATSON, of the Pine street Presbyterian church, Harrisburg, learning that his congregation were on the point of adding $300 a year to his salary, said he would peremptorily refuse to accept the increase, in consideration of the fact that there were a number of poor in the congregation who needed assistance.

Crop Notes.

To the Editors of the Pittsburgh Gazette:

SHALER TOWNSHIP, June 15, 1876.

Harvest is now approaching and the crops will not be very large. Some rye fields are making a fair show. Wheat and oats will be less than average. The corn may do well if the season should not be very dry. Some clover is now about ripe enough for the scythe. If dry weather should continue the grain will soon ripen, but the heads will not be well filled. Cherries are beginning to ripen, but the crop of them and other fruits will be but small. Tobacco may do well, but the bugs are now troublesome to them, the farmers applying Paris green to them liberally.

The school board has organized and made some arrangements for the next term of school. A new school house is to be built, and the term for next year is to be seven months, commencing about the first of October.

Rural affairs in Indiana township are essentially the same as those of Shaler.

Recapitulation.

Hayes.....384 Blaine..... 351
Bristow.....21
Necessary to a choice, 379.

Immediately after the call began a delegate from New York asked permission for the New York delegation to withdraw.

The Chair—"If the New York delegation desires to withdraw, they can do it at their own motion without addressing the Chair."

Immediately after Colorado was called the New York delegation withdrew, following the example set by the Pennsylvanians.

When the New York delegation returned and resumed their seats, Mr. Dumbell ascended the platform, and amid breathless expectation spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention a very unpleasant duty is now imposed upon me as chairman of the Indiana delegation with which to announce to the name of the great statesman I express my own deep regret as well as that of every delegate from Indiana and every alternate and every citizen of Indiana he claims to be Republican party. What I say is said in the sense of the United States in order to secure the wisest and the best, I utter a truth that will not be disputed by any Republican in the United States of America. (Cheers.) But we feel that the time has come for us not to ask any longer that our friends shall stand by us. We thank you."

[Great and long applause and yells which followed this announcement lasted fully ten minutes. The galleries were wild with excitement, gentlemen jumping upon the seats and waving their hats and canes in the air, while the ladies used their handkerchiefs to show their preferences. After adding five votes for Benj. H. Bristow, Mr. Cumback retired to his delegation amid deafening cheers.

When Kentucky was called Gen. Harlan with rew the name of Bristow, and cast the entire vote of Kentucky for Hayes.

During the demonstrations that followed this announcement Mr. Cumback took his place on the platform, and said: "Gentlemen, as the name of Benj. H. Bristow is now withdrawn, I am instructed to call the other five votes from Indiana for Rutherford B. Hayes." (Loud cheers, which lasted several minutes.)

Mr. Ingersoll, of Illinois, rose to a point of order, but tried in vain to make himself heard. The scene at this point was almost indescribable. Delegates on the floor were mounted their seats, and waving their hats and fans yelled "Hayes." The crowd in the galleries was equally demonstrative.

The change of the Pennsylvania vote provoked another outburst of yells. When New York was called Mr. Pomeroy said: "To indicate that New York is in favor of unity and victory, she casts sixty-one votes for Rutherford B. Hayes and nine votes for James G. Blaine."

This report was greeted with ferocious cheers.

When Montana was called the Chairman said: "Montana, yielding to no one in admiration of the gallant statesman from Maine, casts her two votes for Rutherford B. Hayes." The result of the vote was known as soon as the roll call was over, and the delegates on the victorious side abandoned themselves to shouts of triumph.

The Chair—"The vote is as follows: Total number, 756; necessary to a choice, 379. Hayes 384 (furious and continued applause, which drowned the music of the band). Blaine 351, and Bristow 311. Rutherford B. Hayes, of the State of Ohio, having received a majority of all the votes cast, is hereby declared to be nominated."

The Nominee of this Convention

for the office of President of the United States. It was moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and on that Mr. Frye, of Maine, has the floor."

Mr. Frye, of Maine—"Mr. President, I know well that this immense and enthusiastic Convention will pardon me if I say in but one word that I desire to join in the glorious supporters that our candidate, Mr. Blaine, has had here. (Applause.) No words of mine can express the thanks which Maine gives to you men who have stood by her as you have done to-day. God bless you forever and ever. (At this point Mr. Frye's voice, in consequence of hoarseness, became almost inaudible.) I have done too much ballooing for James G. Blaine to preserve my voice (Applause and laughter.) We recognize the act that the Convention, in its wisdom, has selected the Hon. Mr. Hayes as the standard bearer in the next great contest for liberty, for justice, for humanity and for civilization, and the State of Maine accepts and endorses fully and completely, and with the nomination of Mr. Hayes. (Cheers.) Our gallant chieftain, James G. Blaine, in September next shall take the field in the State of Maine for the man you have selected, and we will sweep that State for him by seven thousand majority (cheers), and then when we have finished Maine we will go forward, under the lead of Blaine, into the old Commonwealth of Massachusetts (cheers), and we will sweep it by 30,000 majority (shouting at their delegates) by sixty thousand majority."

Mr. Frye's voice at this time became so hoarse that he could hardly speak. He realized that it was impossible for him to proceed, and therefore said: "It is useless for me to try to speak. My voice is all gone."

Judge Poland, of Vermont—"Let me suggest that you do not try to speak loud. Speak in your ordinary voice, and we will keep quiet."

Mr. Frye—"I will close by simply saying or making the motion, or seconding the motion that has been made, that the nomination of Rutherford B. Hayes be made unanimous." (Deafening cheers.)

The Nomination Made Unanimous.

The Chair—"The question is, shall the motion be agreed to?" It was agreed to without a dissenting voice.

The Chair—"It is unanimously agreed to." [Cheering.]

After a lively selection by the orchestra, the chief stated that there was no business before the Convention.

Senator Lewis, of West Virginia—"I move that the Chairman appoint a committee of two to wait upon Gov. Hayes, and to inform him of his unanimous nomination by this Convention."

The motion was put and carried.

Vice President.

A delegate from New Jersey moved to proceed to the nomination of Vice President, and the motion was carried.

Judge Poland, of Vermont—"I nominate Hon. Wm. Wheeler, of New York." (Cheers.)

Gov. Hawley nominated Hon. Marshal Jewell.

Judge Hoar seconded the nomination of Mr. Wheeler, and said Massachusetts would have been willing to trust the Presidency to such a candidate.

Thomas C. Platt, of New York, nominated Secretary Lewis L. Woodford.

On motion of a delegate the roll of the States was called, that the candidates for each might be nominated—in case there were many.

When Indiana was called Mr. Cumback seconded the nomination of Wooford.

Col. Ingalls, of Illinois—"Illinois gives 42 votes to Wheeler." (Laughter.)

Gen. Harlan, of Kentucky, nominated Gen. Joseph R. Hawley.

Mr. Saulsbon, of Mississippi, said they had learned from bitter experience the need of care in selecting a candidate for Vice President. Mississippi, with pride and pleasure, seconded the nomination of Woodford. He called on his Southern colleagues generally to, he said, were pledged to go South and stump the country in the face of the Ku-Klux.

Mr. Pitrey, of New Jersey, then came forward, and commencing a speech, had reached the point where he informed the Convention that he had been directed by his delegation to do something, when a band, followed by a crowd of enthusiastic Hayes men, marched into the hall, and with their noise completely swamped Pitrey's intended utterance.

When the band subsided Mr. Pitrey nominated F. T. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey.

Henry R. Jones, of New York, nominated W. A. Wheeler, of New York.

Texas nominated Marshal Jewell, of Connecticut.

The Chair—"The roll call of States has been completed, and nominations for Vice President have been made. What is the pleasure of the Convention?" (Cries of 'Go to balloting.')

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania, when Pennsylvania was called, said: "We did not hear it. On behalf of our delegation and speaking for myself, I want to second the nomination of that first class Republican, Wm. A. Wheeler, of New York." (Cheers.)

The Chair directed the clerk to read the list of nominations, after which the call of the States was proceeded with. A ballot was then begun.

When Connecticut was called, the chairman of the delegation said: "Under-standing that one person nominated was not a candidate, Connecticut cast eleven votes for Jewell and one for Wheeler."

When New York was reached Lieutenant-Governor Woodford withdrew his name as a candidate.

When Tennessee had been reached Wheeler had received over three hundred votes, and it was apparent that he was nominated.

Mr. Kellogg, of Connecticut—"Mr. President, by unanimous consent I would like to withdraw the name of Marshall Jewell, and move the unanimous nomination of Wm. A. Wheeler of New York."

The Chair—"Will the Convention suspend the roll call at this point to make the nomination of Wm. A. Wheeler unanimous?" (Cries of "Yes," "Yes.")

The Chair put the motion, and it was carried, and he announced that Wm. Wheeler having received a majority of the votes of this Convention, is hereby declared the nominee for Vice President of the United States. (Loud cheers.)

Telegram from Mr. Blaine.

The Chairman then read the following telegram:

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16, 1876.

To the Hon. Eugene Hale:

I hope that you will find it convenient to stop in Columbus, and hear my congratulations and sincere personal respects and regards to Governor Hayes.

(Signed) JAMES G. BLAINE.

The reading of the telegram was received with cheers.

Mr. Cumback, of Indiana—"I move that the delegations be seated, and that we determine our National Committee. Let us do that at once, and then we will adjourn."

In accordance with this motion, the following were appointed members of the Committee, with the understanding that the delegates from Texas should be appointed in the evening:

Hayes and Wm. A. Wheeler"

The Chair—"Shall it be unanimously adopted?"

It was agreed to.

Thanks to the Chairman.

Mr. Lewis, of Virginia—"Gentlemen of the Convention, I rise to offer the thanks of this Convention to the distinguished individual who has presided over this meeting. I will read the resolution:

"Resolved, That the President of this Convention is entitled to the thanks of this body for the able and impartial manner in which he has discharged the arduous duties.

The resolution was adopted. Thanks were also tendered to the Secretaries, Sergeant-at-Arms, &c., and also, on motion of the chair, to the citizens of Cincinnati for their hospitality and kindness.

Mr. Eggleston—"On behalf of the Ohio delegation and of all the people of Ohio, I desire to return thanks for the nomination of our candidate for President of the United States."

Mr. Keyes, of Wisconsin—"I move that we adjourn sine die.

The motion was put and carried, and the Convention adjourned.

Ratification Meeting.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—A ratification meeting was held to-night at Pike's Opera House. The committee of the Bristow Club, of this city, waited upon the Hayes Committee, and invited them to take possession of the Opera House. The large hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and all the speeches made received with the most enthusiasm. The meeting was called to order by Jno. Cashise, who said that the club known as the Bristow Club, but now the Hayes, had tendered the use of the hall for a grand ratification meeting. He introduced Gen Hawley, of Connecticut, who came forward amid loud cheers and addressed the meeting.

Franklin, Pa,

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

FRANKLIN, PA., June 16, 1876.

There is great disappointment here at the defeat of Blaine. We will all go for Hayes, but Blaine would have carried this county by 1,000 majority. The young men and their daddies were all for Blaine.

PARKER.

New Castle, Pa.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NEW CASTLE, PA., June 16, 1876.

The nomination of Hayes for President has taken the Republicans by surprise. No enthusiasm whatever, as we are all for Blaine.

Brownsville, Pa.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

BROWNSVILLE, PA, June 16, 1876.

The defeat of James G. Blaine by the action of the Pennsylvania delegation is severely commented on here. Republicans when they received the news went home with their chins hanging. No enthusiasm whatever. The powder prepared to fire a salute for Blaine is for sale to the highest bidder. We are all still for Blaine.

JOSE.

New Brighton, Pa.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

NEW BRIGHTON, June 16, 1876.

The Republicans of Beaver county look and feel about the same as they usually felt when our armies met with disaster during the war. They had so firmly fixed on the gallant Blaine for their standard bearer that even so good a man as Hayes does not enthuse them. We are sick.

H. J.

Washington, Pa.

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 16, 1876.

The people are sorely disappointed over the result at Cincinnati, and vengeance is sworn by the Republicans of this county on our State leaders. Our Congressman, Moore, it is believed here, worked against Blaine, as he is controlled by Cameron. Every dog has his day, and look out for breakers.

I.

THE CANDIDATES.

Gov. Rutherford B. Hayes.

Gen. Hayes is about 46 years of age. In personal appearance he is of medium height, heavy set, and inclined to corpulency. A massive head with high forehead makes him noticeable, but his countenance is partially concealed by a heavy growth of whiskers and mustache. In manner he is affable—much given to general handshaking—although never losing his personal dignity. He is reputed to be worth about a million dollars, the major part of which was inherited. He served with gallantry through the war, and came out as major-general. He then settled back into the practice of the law at Cincinnati, and has a high name at the bar. His political record embraces a term in Congress from the Second district; a defeat the next term for his opposition to Sunday beer gardens, and subsequently his election three different times to the Governship of Ohio, beating the three Democratic champions—Thurman, Pendleton and Allen. He is a strong temperance man, giving his money and personal influence to the cause; is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has a reputation for honesty not excelled by "Honest Old Abe," is a sound lawyer, a clear headed and convincing speaker, a man of simplest habits of life, and one of the purest men in the land. His career has been a singularly "lucky" one—his defeats (except in the case of his defeat for Congress)—having always been in the ascendant.

Hon. Wm. A. Wheeler.

The nominee for Vice President is a native and resident of New York. A lawyer by profession, and one of the most high-toned, able and honorable at the Bar of the Empire State. He has held several local positions of honor and trust, and is looked upon as a man of the highest integrity and the soundest judgment. In Congress he made a reputation by his course in the Louisiana troubles. He was sent there by President Grant to look into them, and told that whatever he recommended the President would do. His report was satisfactory. He is a modest, quiet worker, but one whose influence is great, and who is held in universal honor by friend and foe.

Secretary Bristow Resigns.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Secretary Bristow has for some time contemplated resigning his office of Secretary of the Treasury, and has had several conversations with the President on the subject, and on the first of the month he advised him of his intention to resign, but not until after the Cincinnati Convention, because to do so before it was held might be construed as a political movement. His reasons for resigning are purely personal, his private affairs being in such a condition as to require his attention. No successor has as yet been designated. He will retire at the end of this month.

BLAINE TO HAYES.

A Rattling Congratulation from the Maine Statesman.

He Will Take the Stump for Hayes at the Earliest Possible Moment.

WASHINGUON, June 16—Upon hearing of the nomination of Hayes, Mr. Blaine sent him the following telegram:

"WASHINGTON, D. C, June 16, 1876.

"I offer my sincerest congratulations on your nomination. It will be alike my highest pleasure as well as my first political duty to do the utmost in my power to promote your election. The earliest moments of my returning and confirmed health will be devoted to securing you as large a vote in Maine as she would have given for myself.

"J. G. BLAINE."

Hayes to Blaine.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—In reply to Blaine's dispatch, the following was received at an early hour this evening.

COLUMBUS, O., June 16, 1876.

Your kind dispatch has touched me most deeply, and I hardly know how to respond in fitting terms. The assurance of your sympathy and support nerves me for the contest in which we are about to enter. With you returning health and strength I see an omen of Republican success. I trust that all trace of your recent illness will speedily disappear, that you may speedily be restored to your family and country. I send you my first dispatch since the nomination.

AT A RECENT meeting of the teachers and officers of the Newsboys Sabbath School, held in the Headquarters of the County Christian Temperance Alliance, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: Superintendent, Thomas Fernsby; Assistant Superintendent, Miss Pearl Starr; Secretary, Mr. G. A. Rich; Treasurer, Mr. Youngson; Librarian, Mr. F. Criely; Assistant Librarian, Mr. M. Smith; General Missionary, Andrew Bryce. The two first officers are colored—Anderson, Smith, Lee A. Starr, A. G. Atkinson Wheeler, McKracken, and Mrs. Maken, Mrs. Bryce and Mrs. Martin and Misses Mengerman, Thompson and Martin. The number in attendance of both children and adults is largely on the increase. A more self-sacrificing band of Christian workers could scarcely be found, devoting Sabbath after Sabbath—in the interest of the boys, some of whom are most rude, in their deportment and almost uncontrollable. Mere workers of the same kind would find a pleasant welcome and a useful, if not profitable field of labor by joining the school. The managers propose holding a fair and festival in their rooms, corner of Penn and Sixth street, commencing next Tuesday evening.

HOME NEWS.

The probabilities for to-day are rising barometer, cooler westerly winds, partly cloudy and clear weather.

The Nominations in Pittsburgh.

There was the most intense excitement in the city yesterday over the balloting at Cincinnati. From early morning until the result was announced the people crowded around the newspaper offices eager to obtain news. It is hardly necessary to say that the almost universal sentiment of the Republicans was in favor of Blaine, and when the first ballot showed him so far in the lead, the news was received with enthusiasm. As the balloting went on, however, the suspense became great, as it was feared that the increase in the voting went on the greater the danger from a combination against Blaine. When the sixth ballot was bulletined, and showed a gain for Blaine, there was a feeling that his nomination was pretty sure. But when the result of the seventh and last ballot was announced, it came with all the force of a shock, and at first was generally discredited. Then came a feeling of deep disgust and dissatisfaction against the successful candidate, but against the defeat of Blaine. The ticket was accepted without a single cheer, and the members of the Pennsylvania delegation, who voted against Blaine were individually and collectively denounced. It was generally conceded that Hayes would be acceptable as a standard bearer, because he was the "Great Unknown." When his merits were more generally canvassed, and little scraps of information concerning him were gathered up, the nomination was more palatable, and later in the evening even Blaine's most ardent friends admitted that Hayes was a good man. The ticket was also finally favorably received with Wheeler on it, and to the dissatisfaction commenced to wear away—although it will be a day or two before all will be harmonious.

This and That Popularity.

Most men are popular with the ladies on account of their personal beauty, while R. Taggart, boot and shoe dealer, of 129 Federal street, Allegheny, has secured the confidence and esteem of the ladies of both cities by reason of the fine assortment of neat, elegant, comfortable and durable shoes, gaiters and slippers for which his house has gained a first-class reputation. Cheaper than the cheapest. The best is the cheapest. He keeps the best qualities at lowest prices.

A LARGE FIRE.

Berger's Bucket Works Again Destroyed—Loss About $25 000—Insurance $10,000 — Watchman Badly Burned.

About half-past eleven o'clock last night, the big bell sounded an alarm from box 64, located at the corner of Twenty-eighth street and Penn avenue. The cause was the discovery of a fire in William Berger's bucket factory, located on the south side of the railroad between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets. The building was totally destroyed, involving a loss of fully $25,000 on which there is an insurance $10,000, placed in the agency of D. B. Allewelt, in Allegheny. This is the third time the works have been burned, the last time being less than two years ago. All the machinery was new, except the boilers, and there was a heavy stock of material and finished goods in the building. The fire originated in the paint shop. The night watchman, John Rhule, had gone into the room with a lighted lamp to pour some benzine out of a large can. The fumes from the can ignited from the lamp flame, the can exploded, and the man let the lamp drop, breaking it. By the explosion of the can, and his subsequent attempts to put out the flame, Rhule was badly burned in the breast, face and hands. He was removed, when found, to the residence of his brother, Twenty-sixth street. The building was an iron-clad frame.

THE Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church, has elected Rev. M. W. Jacobus, D.D. of the Western Theological Seminary, in Allegheny, its Secretary. If he accepts the appointment—and we must say things look that way now—the best wishes of those who would gladly retain him here will accompany him, and the Board of Educat ion will have a most efficient and successful Secretary.

THE next session of the West Pittsburgh District Conference will be held in Washington Pa., Tuesday and Wednesday, June 20th and 21st. The first session will be held Tuesday at 2 P. M. Bishop Foster is expected to be present during the session.

LAST Monday's session of the M. E. Preachers meeting was made interesting by the consideration of the doings of the late General Conference. Rev. Dr. J. M. Thoburn was present and participated in the discussions, and also spoke, in a most touching manner of his work in India. Among the visiting ministers was Rev. J. R. Mills of Steubenville, O.

A FAIR and Festival will be held at the Alliance Rooms, commencing on Tuesday next, for the benefit of the newsboys' Sabbath school.

THE new M. E. church at Washington, Pa., will be dedicated to-morrow. Bishop Foster will preach the sermon and assist the pastor, Rev. Dr. R. L. Miller, in the other dedicatory exercises.

PREACHING in the First Reformed Presbyterian church, Oak alley, near Liberty street, on Sabbath next by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Young, in the morning at 10:30 o'clock, and at 7:30 in the evening. A collection will be taken up at the ...pastor. The bill was nearly a hundred dollars in excess of the contract price. Every item it was carefully compared with the items of the correctly rendered bill of the Fretheits Freund, for publishing precisely the same matter, and each one was found to be at least one-third greater than its German contemporary's, all of them, as stated, aggregating nearly $1,000 more than can be collected under the contract. The committee expresses its intention of keeping a keen eye upon such illegal bills, and making them conform to the law.

Which Shall I Take?

This is often a serious question with the invalid. He finds the market flooded with proprietary medicines, scores of which are recommended as certain cures for his peculiar ailment. He reads the papers, circulars, and almanacs, and finds each sustained by plausible arguments setting forth its virtues and specific action. The recommendations are as strong for one as for another The cures claimed to have been wrought by one are as wonderful as those claimed to have been wrought by another. In his perplexity and doubt, the suffered is sometimes led to reject all. But it should be borne in mind that this condition of things is one that cannot be remedied. It is a land where all are free, the good—the truly valuable—must come into competition with the valueless worthless, and must be brought to public notice by the same instrumentality by which is advertising. In such a case, perhaps the only absolute proof that a remedy is what it claims to be, is to try it. The test of a pudding is the eating of it. "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is the apostolic injunction. There may, however, be a stronger presumptive evidence in favor of one article than there is in favor of another, and this should be allowed its due weight. A due regard to this may save a vast amount of experimenting and a useless outlay of money. A practical illustration of this is found in Pierce's Family Medicines, the Proprietor desires to say, that they are prepared by a new and scientific process by which the virtues of the crude plants and roots are extracted without the use of particle as alcohol. Not a particle of this destroyer of our race enters into the composition of either his Golden Medical Discovery or Favorite Prescription. This consideration alone ought certainly to rank them high above the vile compounds saturated with alcohol. Jamaica rum, sour beer, or vinegar, which make up the bulk offered for sale. Again, they are of uniform strength, and their virtues can never be impaired by age. They are also made from fresh herbs and roots, gathered in their appropriate season, by which they are fully vitalized in properties. In support of these claims, the following testimony is offered:

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.: NEWARK, N. J.

Dear Sir,—I have sold a great deal of your excellent remedies, and I prefer to sell them before others, because they give good satisfaction to those who use them. I hear such remarks as "Sage's Remedy completely cured me; it is a splendid thing," or, "Pierce's Discovery is just what I want." Every person who has used your medicines will preach in the Fourth U. P. ...ll labor earnestly for your success.

Yours truly, P. MORTON.

Gov. Hayes at Home.

COLUMBUS, June 16.—The news of Gov. Hayes' nomination created great excitement here. Hundreds of citizens at once called on Gov. Hayes to tender their congratulations. The city is all alive tonight with bands of music, processions, bonfires and fire works. The Governor held a reception to-night at the Executive Chamber. Word has been received that a large number of delegates will arrive here from Cincinnati at midnight and desire to serenade the nominee. Governor Hayes will therefore remain in his office until the arrival of the late trains.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

How Mr. Blaine Received His Defeat.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Mr. Blaine was in communication with his friends in Cincinnati. As soon as New York's vote on the seventh ballot was reported he left and wrote his congratulatory dispatch to Mr. Hayes, and it was on the wires to Columbus before the footings of the ballot were received in Washington. Immediately after the formal announcement Mr. Blaine rode out with his oldest son, and was greeted with loud cheers wherever crowds were assembled on the streets. Blaine received dispatches throughout the day in his library, in company with some dozens friends, some of whom continually assured that Hayes would be ultimately nominated. He was fully impressed with the probability of a successful combination against him, and except during twenty minutes following the sixth ballot did not expect the nomination. He was altogether the coolest and least excited of the company. During this evening his residence was crowded with callers, whom Blaine received with cheerfulness, exhibiting no trace whatever of disappointment. Discussing the events of to-day, he says the immediate cause of the failure of his friends to secure his nomination was the holding back of votes for him from Pennsylvania after the third ballot. This Blaine attributes to the ill-timed wrath temporarily lent to Hartranft from time to time by the Conkling forces, which made it impossible for a minority of the Pennsylvania delegation to urge their candidate, and could not properly be dropped while he was still apparently gaining votes.

Soon after the intelligence of the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler was received a salute was fired and arrangements made for a ratification meeting to-morrow night in front of City Hall. Morton, Conkling and Secretary Bristow acquiesce in the result.

Recapitulation.

Hayes	384
Blaine	351
Necessary to a choice, 379.

Immediately after the call began a delegate from New York asked permission for the New York delegation to withdraw.

The Chair—"If the New York delegation desires to withdraw, they can do it at their own motion without addressing the Chair."

Immediately after Colorado was called the New York delegation withdrew, following the example set by the Pennsylvanians.

When the New York delegation returned and resumed their seats, Mr. Cumback ascended the platform, and amid breathless expectation spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the convention a very unpleasant duty has been imposed upon me as chairman of the Indiana delegation to withdraw my name from further consideration of this convention in the name of the great statesman I express my own deep regret as well as that of every delegate from Indiana and every delegate from every citizen of Indiana who adheres to the Republican party. When I say to you that Indiana is the peer of the noblest and the best, I utter a truth that will not be disputed by any Republican in the United States or the peer of the noblest and the best, I utter a truth that will not be disputed by any Republican in the United States of America. (Cheers.) But we feel that the time has come for us not to ask any longer that our friends shall stand by us. We thank you for the kindness and courtesy you have extended to us. [Loud applause and yells which followed this announcement lasted fully ten minutes. The galleries were wild with excitement, gentlemen jumping upon the seats and waiving their hats and canes in the air, while the ladies used their handkerchiefs to show the force of their predilections. After adding five votes for Benj. H. Bristow, Mr. Cumback retired to his delegation amid deafening cheers.

When Kentucky was called Gen. Harlan withdrew the name of Bristow, and cast the entire vote of Kentucky for Hayes.

During the demonstrations that followed this announcement Mr. Cumback took his place on the platform, and said: Gentlemen, as the name of Benj. H. Bristow having been withdrawn, I am instructed to call the other five votes from Indiana for Rutherford B. Hayes! (Loud cheers, which lasted several minutes.)

Mr. Ingersoll, of Illinois, rose to a point of order, but tried in vain to make himself heard, while the confusion was almost indescribable. Numbers of the delegates mounted their seats, and waving their hats and fans yelled "Hayes." The crowd in the galleries caught the demonstration.

The change of Minnesota for Hayes provoked another outburst of yells. When New York was called Mr. Pomeroy said: "For New York it is in favor of unity and victory, she casts sixty-one votes for Rutherford B. Hayes and nine votes for James G. Blaine."

This report was greeted with ferocious cheers.

When Montana was called the Chairman said: "Montana, yielding to no one in admiration of the gallant statesman from Maine, casts two votes for Rutherford B. Hayes." The result of the ballot was known as soon as the roll call was over, and the delegates on the victorious side abandoned themselves to shouts of triumph.

The Chair—"The vote is as follows: Total number, 756; necessary to a choice, 379; Hayes 384 (various and continued applause, which drowned the sound of the hand), Blaine 351, and Bristow 31. Rutherford B. Hayes, of the State of Ohio, having received a majority of the votes cast is hereby declared to be for the office of President of the United States. It was moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and on that Mr. Frye, of Maine, has the floor.

Mr. Frye, of Maine—"Mr. President, I know well that this immense and enthusiastic Convention will pardon me if I say just one word and only one of thanks to the glorious supporters that our candidate, Mr. Blaine, has had here. (Applause.) No words of mine can express the thanks which the people of this land have always stood by her as you have here to-day. God bless you forever and ever. (At this point Mr. Frye's voice, in consequence of hoarseness, became almost inaudible.) I have much ballooing to do for James G. Blaine to preserve my voice (Applause and laughter.) We recognize the fact that the Convention, in its wisdom, has selected the Hon. Mr. Hayes as the standard bearer of this great and glorious party, for liberty, for justice, for humanity and for civilization, and the State of Maine accepts and endorses fully and completely, and will vote in the nomination of Mr. Hayes. (Cheers.) Our gallant chieftain, James G. Blaine, in September next shall take the field in the State of Maine for the third time, and I say that we will sweep that State for him by twenty thousand majority (cheers), and then when we have finished Maine we will go forward, under the lead of Blaine, into the old Commonwealth of Massachusetts (cheers), and we will sweep her, with their help (looking at their delegates) by sixty thousand majority."

Mr. Frye's voice at this time became so husky that he could hardly speak. He realized that it was impossible for him to proceed, and therefore said "it is useless for me to try to speak. My voice is all gone."

Judge Poland, of Vermont—"Let me suggest that you do not try to speak loud. Speak in your ordinary voice, and we will keep quiet."

Mr. Frye—"I will close by simply saying or making the motion, or seconding the motion that has been made, that the nomination of Rutherford B. Hayes be made unanimous." (Deafening cheers.)

The Nomination Made Unanimous.

The Chair—"The question is, shall the motion be agreed to?" It was agreed to without a dissenting voice.

The Chair—"It is unanimously agreed to." (Cheering.)

After a lively selection by the orchestra the chair stated that there was no business before the Convention.

Senator Lewis, of West Virginia—"I move that the chairman appoint a committee of two to wait upon Gov. Hayes, and to inform him of his unanimous nomination by this Convention."

The motion was put and carried.

Vice Presidency.

A delegate from New Jersey moved to proceed to the nomination of Vice President, and the motion was carried.

Judge Poand, of Vermont—"I nominate Hon. Wm. Wheeler, of New York." (Cheers.)

Gov. Hawley nominated Hon. Marshal Jewell.

Judge Hoar seconded the nomination of Mr. Wheeler, and said Massachusetts would have no willing to trust the Presidency to such a candidate.

Thomas C. Platt, of New York, nominated S. Stewart L. Woodford.

On motion to delegate the roll of the States was called, that the candidates for each might be nominated—in case there were any.

When Indiana was called Mr. Cumback seconded the nomination of Woodford.

Col. Ingalls, of Illinois—"Illinois gives 42 votes to Wheeler." (Laughter.)

Gen. Harlan, of Kentucky, nominated Gen. Joseph R. Hawley.

Mr. Saldon, of Mississippi, said they had learned from bitter experience the need of care in selecting a candidate for Vice President. Mississippi, with pride and pleasure, seconded the nomination of Woodford. He called on his Southern colleagues generally, who, he said, were pledged to go South and stump the country in the face of the Ku-klux.

Mr. Pitrey, of New Jersey, then came forward, and commencing a speech, had reached the point where he informed the Convention that he had been directed by his delegation to do something, when a band, followed by a crowd of enthusiastic Hayes men, marched into the hall, and with their noise completely swamped Pitrey's intended utterance.

When the band subsided Mr. Pitrey nominated F. T. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey.

Henry R. Jones, of New York, nominated W. A. Wheeler, of New York.

Texas nominated Marshal Jewell, of Connecticut.

The Chair—"The roll call of States has been completed, and nominations for Vice President have been made. What is the pleasure of the Convention?" (Cries of "Ballot balloting.")

Mr. Cessna, of Pennsylvania, when Pennsylvania was called, said: "We did not hear it. On behalf of our delegation and speaking for myself, I wish to second the nomination of that first-class Republican, Wm. A. Wheeler, of New York." (Cheers.)

The Chair directed the clerk to read the list of nominations, after which the call of the States was proceeded with. A ballot was then begun.

When Connecticut was called, the chairman of the delegation said: "Understanding that one person nominated was not acceptable, Connecticut cast eleven votes for Jewell and one for Wheeler."

When New York was reached Lieutenant-Governor Woodford withdrew his name as a candidate.

When Tennessee had been reached Wheeler had received over three hundred votes, and it was apparent that he was nominated.

Mr. Kellogg, of Connecticut—"Mr. President, by unanimous consent I would like to withdraw the name of Marshall Jewell, and move the unanimous nomination of Wm. A. Wheeler, of New York."

The Chair—"Will the Convention suspend the roll call at this point to make the nomination of Wm. A. Wheeler unanimous?" (Cries of "Yes," "Yes.")

The Chair put the motion, and it was carried, and he announced that Wm. Wheeler having received a majority of the votes of this Convention as hereby declared the nominee for Vice President of the United States. (Loud cheers.)

Telegram from Mr. Blaine.

The Chairman then read the following telegram:

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16, 1876.

To the Hon. Eugene Hale:

I hope that you will find it convenient to stop in Columbus, and bear my congratulations and sincere personal respects and regards to Governor Hayes.

(Signed) JAMES G. BLAINE.

The reading of the telegram was received with cheers.

Mr. Cumback, of Indiana—"I move that the delgations be seated, and that we determine our National Committee. Let us do that at once, and then we will adjourn."

In accordance with this motion, the following were appointed members of the Committee, with the understanding that the delegates from Texas should be appointed in the evening:

CINCINNATI, June 16.—A ratification meeting was held to-night at Pike's Opera House. The committee of the Bristow Club, of this city, waited upon the Hayes Committee, and invited them to take possession of the Bristow Club. The large hall was filled to its utmost capacity, and all the speeches made were received with the utmost enthusiasm. The meeting was called to order by Jno. Caslisle, who said that the club known as the Bristow Club, but now the Hayes, had tendered the use of the hall for a grand ratification meeting. He introduced Gen Hawley, of Connecticut, who came forward amid loud cheers and addressed the meeting.

The defeat of James G. Blaine by the action of the Pennsylvania delegation is severely commented on here. Republicans when they received the news went home with their chins hanging. WASHINGTON, Pa., June 16, 1876.

Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

The people are sorely disappointed over the result at Cincinnati, and vengeance is sworn by the Republicans of this county on our State leaders. Our Congressman, Moore, it is believed here, worked against Blaine, as he is controlled by Cameron. Every dog has his day, and look out for breakers. I.

I beg of you to accept my earnest and hearty congratulations. Your nomination secures victory in November.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

How Mr. Blaine Received His Defeat.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Mr. Blaine was in communication with his friends in Cincinnati. As soon as New York's vote on the seventh ballot was reported he sat down and wrote his congratulatory dispatch to Mr. Hayes, and it was on the wires to Columbus before the footings of the ballot were received in Washington. Immediately after the formal announcement Mr. Blaine rode out with his oldest son, and was received with loud cheers whenever crowds were assembled on the streets. Blaine remained during the afternoon of the day in his library, in company with some dozen friends, whom he continually assured that Hayes would be ultimately nominated. He was fully impressed with the probability of a successful combination against him, and except during twenty minutes following the sixth ballot did not expect the nomination. He was altogether the coolest and least excited of the company. During this evening his residence was crowded with callers, whom Blaine received with cheerfulness, exhibiting no trace whatever of disappointment. Discussing the event of to-day he says the immediate cause of the failure of his friends to secure his nomination was the holding back of votes from Pennsylvania after the third ballot. This Blaine attributes to the fictitious strength temporarily lent to Hartranft from the start by the Conkling forces, which made it impossible for a minority of the Pennsylvania delegation to urge their candidate, and could not properly be dropped while he was still apparently gaining votes.

Soon after the intelligence of the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler was received a sainte was fired and arrangements made for a ratification meeting to-morrow night in front of City Hall. Morton, Conkling and Secretary Bristow acquiesce in the result.

The Nominations in Pittsburgh.

There was the most intense excitement in the city yesterday over the balloting at Cincinnati. From early morning until the result was announced the people crowded around the newspaper offices eager to obtain news. It is hardly necessary to say that the almost universal sentiment of the Republicans was in favor of Blaine, and when the first ballot showed him so far in the lead, the city was wrapped with enthusiasm. As the balloting went on, however, the suspense became great, as it was feared that the longer the voting went on the greater the danger from a combination against Blaine. When the sixth ballot was bulletined, and showed a gain for Blaine, there was a feeling that his nomination was pretty sure. So when the result of the seventh and last ballot was announced, it came with all the force of a shock, and at first was generally discredited. Then came a feeling of deep disgust and dissatisfaction—against not the successful candidate, but against the defeat of Blaine. The ticket was accepted without a single cheer, and the members of the Pennsylvania delegation, who voted against Blaine, were denounced unreservedly anathematized. It was generally conceded that Hayes would be acceptable as a standard bearer, because he was the "Great Unknown." When his merits were more generally canvassed, and little scraps of information concerning him were gathered up, the nomination was more palatable, and later in the evening even Blaine's most ardent friends admitted that Hayes was a good man. The ticket was also the more favorably received with Wheeler on it, and so the dissatisfaction commenced to wear away—although it will be a day or two before all will be harmonious.

This and That Popularity.

Most men are popular with the ladies on account of their personal beauty, while R. Taggart, boot and shoe dealer, of 129 Federal street, Allegheny, has secured the confidence and esteem of the ladies of both cities by reason of the fine assortment of neat, elegant, comfortable and durable shoes, gaiters and slippers for which his house has gained a first-class reputation. Cheaper than the cheapest. The best is the cheapest. He keeps the best qualities at lowest prices.

A LARGE FIRE.

Seeger's Bucket Works Again Destroyed—Loss About $25,000—Insurance $10,000—Watchman Badly Burned.

About half-past eleven o'clock last night, the big bell sounded an alarm from box 64, located at the corner of Twenty-eighth street and Penn avenue. The cause was the discovery of a fire in William Berger's bucket factory, located on the south side of the railroad between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets. The building was totally destroyed, involving a loss of fully $25,000 on which there is an insurance $10,000, placed in the agency of D. B. Allewelt, in Allegheny. This is the third time the works have been burned, the last time being less than two years ago. All the machinery was new, except the boilers, and there was a heavy stock of material and finished goods in the building. The fire originated in the paint shop. The night watchman, John Rhule, had gone into the room with a lighted lamp to pour some benzine out of a large can. The fumes from the can ignited. The lamp flame, the can exploded, and the man let the lamp drop, breaking it. By the explosion of the can, and his subsequent attempts to put out the flame, Rhule was badly burned in the breast, face and hands. He was removed, when found, to the residence of his brother, Twenty-sixth street. The building was an iron-clad frame.

ORGANIZED.

The Pittsburgh and Arnold Grove Camp Meeting Association.

A meeting of the subscribers to the Arnold Grove Camp Meeting fund was held at the Smithfield street M. E. Church last evening, for the purpose of hearing the reports of the Committees on Purchase and on Charter.

The meeting was organized by calling Samuel H. Baird to the chair, J. B. Stewart acting as secretary.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Mr. John M. Irwin, from the Committee of Purchase, reported that he had interviewed Mr. Evans, the assignee of Mr. Bowman, and that gentleman had agreed to modify the article of agreement presented at a previous meeting. He now agreed to sell 36 acres for $9,000, which is at the rate of $250 per acre. The report was received.

On motion of Mr. Booth action on the report was postponed for the present.

Mr. E. T. Cassiday, from the Committee on Charter, presented the report of the committeee, and submitted a draft of article of association or charter, which was received, the committee discharged. The report was then taken up seriatum, and with a few amendments was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Irwin a committee of five, consisting of Jno. Fullerton, Robert McEldowney, H. Sampson, Wm. Yankirk and J. J. Shutterly, were appointed to confer with the trustees of the Tarentum Association relative to a meeting, and also to obtain subscribers to the fund.

On motion of Mr. Cassiday an invitation was extended to the stock or lot holders in the Tarentum Association to join with this Association, and it was resolved that this Association agree to assume the liabilities of the Tarentum Association on condition of such union.

On motion adjourned to meet Friday evening next to elect a President and Board of Managers, as provided in the articles of Association, and that the Secretary be directed to give notice to all subscribers to the fund of such meeting.

There was not a very large number of persons present, but most of them that were there subscribed to the stock.

The articles of the Association provide for a capital stock of $18,000, in shares of $100 each, payable in installments of $25.

CAST ASIDE.

The "Dispatch" Renders Executive Bills for City Printing—The Committee Ignores Them.

The Pitt... held a meeting ...ternoon and appointed ... it except the ..., which is the ... printer. The bill was nearly a hundred dollars in excess of the contract price. Every item in it was carefully compared with the items of the correctly rendered bill of the Freiheits Freund, for publishing precisely the same matter, and each one was found to be at least one-third greater than its German contemporary's, all of them, as stated, aggregating nearly $1,000 more than can be collected under the contract. The committee expresses its intention of keeping a keen eye upon such illegal bills, and making them conform to the law.

Which Shall I Take?

This is often a serious question with the invalid. He finds the market flooded with proprietary medicines, scores of which are recommded as certain cures for his peculiar ailment. He reads the papers, circulars, and almanacs, and finds each sustained by plausible arguments setting forth its virtues and specific action. The recommendations are as strong for one as for another. The cures claimed to have been made by one are as wonderful as those claimed to have been wrought by another. In his perplexity and doubt, the suffered is sometimes led to try one of all. But he should be borne in mind that this condition of things is one that cannot be remedied. In a land where all are free, the good—the truly valuable—must contend in competition with the false and worthless, and must be brought to public notice by the same instrumentality, which is advertising. In such a case, perhaps the only infallible proof that is remedy is what it claims to be, is to try it. The "test of a pudding is the eating of it." "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good," is the apostolic injunction. There may, however, be a stronger presumptive evidence in favor of one remedy than there is in favor of another, and this should be allowed its due weight. A due regard to this may save much time and expense of experimenting and a useless outlay of money. As presumptive evidence in favor of Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines, the Proprietor desires to say, that they are prepared by a safe and scientific process by which the virtues of the crude plants and roots are extracted without the use of a particle of alcohol. A specific of this character for our race enters into the composition of either his Golden Medical Discovery or Favorite Prescription. This consideration alone ought certainly to recommend them high above the vile compounds saturated with alcohol, Jamaica rum, sour beer, or vinegar, which are everywhere offered for sale. Again they are put up of uniform strength, and their virtues can never be impaired by age. They are also made from fresh herbs and roots, gathered in their perfection at season, when they are flush with medicinal properties. In support of these claims, the following testimony is offered:

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.: NEWARK, N. J.

Dear Sir,—I have sold a great deal of your excellent remedies, and I prefer to sell them before others, because they give good satisfaction to those who use them. I hear such remarks as "Sage's Remedy completely cured me; it is a splendid thing," or, "Pierce's Discovery is just what I wanted; I feel better than I ever did." One of our celebrated singers uses it for strengthening her voice, and says "there is nothing equals it," and so I might give scores of remarks said about your preparations. A colored man bought of your Discovery, and after taking three bottles was completely cured. She, being in the store, said to me, "I don't want no doctors round me so long as I can get Dr. Pierce's; it beats all your doctors." And so I might go on

I am, most respectfully, yours,

ATHA B. CROOKS.
